East Granite turnout sought

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Mayor Von Dee Cruse wants every resident of East Granite to be at the Township Hall at 7 p.m. Jan. 3.

"We want the building filled and overflowing," he said.

At that time there will be a public hearing on the proposed rehabilitation program for the area between Madison Avenue, from 23rd to 27th streets, and East 23rd Street, from 23rd Street to Nameoki Road.

"One of the big things we want to tell people about is that programs are available to them through Madison County Community Development — weatherization, rehab programs and low-interest loans — and how they can take advantage of them to do some home improvements," Cruse said.

"I think this neighborhood rehabilitation is really possible. We've just got to build community spirit — get the people involved." Among the city's plans for the big neighborhood are condemnation and demolition of dilapidated structures, making use of the vacant lots, improving the exterior appearance of buildings, demolishing Webster School and making a neighborhood park, planting trees along Madison Avenue and East 23rd Street, limiting access points to the neighborhood and improving the overall cleanliness of the area by using neighborhood trash dumpsters.

Cruse said the city's plans, such as tree planting and making a park at the site of the closed school, will help the people protect their property values, but admitted there are limits on what the city can do.

"Local government can only do so much," he said. "But if we can show people, get people interested, then people can make these things happen. If the grass is cut, the house is painted, little things like that, then it makes it a better place to come home to."

Weather keeps IAW crews busy

By Dennis Grubaugh
Managing editor

GRANITE CITY — Although cold weather has kept its crews busy, Illinois-American Water Co. has managed to answer every water break call thus far.

Wayne Schlosser, community relations manager for IAW, said Wednesday many leaks are being detected now that rising temperatures are causing pipes to thaw.

"So far it's been about par for the course," he said, comparing calls to previous winters.

Within the next several days, he'll be able to tell if the number of calls reflects the severity of December's record-breaking low temperatures, including consecutive nights of 16 degrees below zero and 15 degrees below zero.

Schlosser said he could not determine how many calls came from the Granite City area, because it is lumped into the "interurban district," which also encompasses Belleville, East St. Louis and surrounding towns in St. Clair, Madison and Monroe counties.

One gauge of local problems could be the Granite City Street Department, which has received numerous calls from local residents about water lines, said Street Superintendent Mac Warfield. He said all of the callers were referred to the water company.

Anyone with water pipe problems is advised to call the water company at 1-800-422-2782.

"We're telling them, 'Call us anytime,'" Schlosser said. "We've got people available 24 hours a day, seven days a week, 365 days a year."

There is no firm rule as to who has financial responsibility for fixing the breaks, Schlosser said, and it is up to the customer service representative to ask the right questions when complaints are received.

General policy is that the company supplies service to the meter pit area, usually in front of a home, and the line from (See ICE, Page 9A)

Coroner's office adding to its staff

GRANITE CITY — Two local men are being added to the staff of the Madison County Coroner's Office.

Ed Morton of Granite City, an associate at the Davis Funeral Home in Granite City, and Roger Smith of Pontoon Beach, formerly associated with the Laughlin Funeral Home in Troy, are new full-time investigators, according to Chief Deputy Coroner Ralph Baahlmann.

Both will be paid "$21,000 a year, $7,000 less than a deputy sheriff starting at the same position," Baahlmann said.

Of the 30 deputy coroners, 28 are non-paid. Baahlmann said. A budget increase is allowing the new hirings.

"There was too much time being required out in the field, and the unpaid staff was unwilling or unable to devote the time," Baahlmann said. "Sometimes that takes four to 10 hours on a case. A homicide can go anywhere from 24-48 hours on the scene."

The work of the coroner's office has changed greatly in recent years, due to legislation and technical advancement.

"In the last several years, it has become tremendously more important that the investigators be well trained in medical-legal death investigation, because they could be called upon in court cases," Baahlmann said. "We want to be able to provide the best possible witnesses."

Non-paid deputy coroners from the Granite City-Pontoon Beach area include Loren Davis, Randy Irwin, Mark Scott and Ed and Barbara Werner.

Smith and Morton will be called upon to cover all areas of the county at all hours, Baahlmann said.

Morton, who has worked as a part-time deputy coroner for nine years, said he is looking forward "to a better system" in the coroner's office.

"The new deputies will be working the homicides, suicides and accidents. I find that interesting. I've been to school for it," he said.

Morton will leave his job at the Davis Funeral Home effective with the start of the new job Jan. 1.

Smith, who had three years as a non-paid deputy, started the full-time job on Dec. 1.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS SAVED: The mobile home of George Miller on East Chain of Rocks Road suffered extensive damage Christmas Eve following what was believed to be an electrical fire, but the Mitchell Fire Protection District did manage to save Christmas presents inside, said Assistant Chief Gene Cooper. Approximately $15,000 structural damage and $5,000 contents damage resulted from the 6 p.m. fire. No one was home at the residence, located on the old TSMI trucking terminal lot behind the 15 Acres Bar.

A holiday story of brotherly love

By Susan Dragich
Staff writer

COLLINSVILLE — Danny Edwards has received the best Christmas present a person could ask for, and he's now waiting for his New Year's wish to come true.

Edwards, of Center Street in Collinsville, was the recipient of a kidney transplant on Dec. 12. The donor was his 25-year-old identical twin brother, David Edwards of Granite City.

Now that he has received his Christmas present, a new kidney, Danny's wish for the new year is to fully recover.

"Now I'm just looking forward to living a normal life," Danny said.

Life for him for more than a year has been dialysis three times a week and daily medications, just to get by.

"I really never knew what it felt like to feel good because I was always sick," Danny said. "I'm still a little sore from the operation, but I feel pretty good."

According to mother Barbara Edwards, the boys are healing ahead of schedule.

"Because they have the same genetic make-up, Danny's body took the new kidney without any problems. He doesn't even have to take the rejection medicine that most kidney transplant patients are required to take for the rest of their lives," she said.

The Edwardses only the third set of identical twins to undergo a kidney transplant at Barnes Hospital in the past 26 years.

"If the shoe was on the other foot, I know that Danny would have done the same thing for me. It wasn't something that I even had to consider. I wanted to do it," David said.

Danny's kidney troubles started when he was only six months old and he has been on constant medication. He began dialysis 15 months ago.

"His kidneys were almost completely deteriorated when the doctors removed them a few weeks ago and put him on a kidney machine," Mrs. Edwards said. "We were told a long time ago that his only chance of survival would be a transplant and at one point they weren't even sure he'd survive that."

When the Edwardses were told that Danny would need a transplant almost 15 months ago, they knew David would be the most appropriate donor because of their genetic match.

"I would have never asked David to donate his kidney because he has a family of his own," Mrs. Edwards said.

David is married and has two children, ages 4 and 2.

It was a complete shock when he volunteered, a shock to everyone," his mother said.

David, who has served in the U.S. Army for the past five years, was on his way to Germany when he decided to stay home for the operation.

Back in March, he was in the process of getting a leave of absence when he was called to report to Germany.

"I was waiting for the U.S. surgeon general to approve my leave of absence for the operation when it was time for me to leave for Germany," David said. "I was at the airport ready to catch my plane and then I decided I had to stay, because I might not get the chance to come back," he said.

He contacted the Red Cross from the airport to notify them of his decision and later his leave was approved by the government. He will be stationed at

Dr. Freedman dies

Dr. Melvin J. Freedman, 64, of University City, a former Granite Cityan, died at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday at his home.

He began a family medical practice here in 1954 and had continued going to his office until a few weeks ago. A past chief of the medical staff of St. Elizabeth Medical Center, he was recognized in 1983 for service to the local community.

Serving in the Army in World War II, he later attended Vanderbilt University and the University of Tennessee. He was a past president of the Tri-City and Madison County medical societies and is survived by his wife, four children and 11 grand-

Hopkins told to stay away

EDWARDSVILLE — A Granite City man awaiting sentencing for the 1988 beating death of his wife has been told by a court to stay away from his girlfriend, who contends she is the latest victim of his violence.

Pauline Dunnivant said that Ernie Hopkins, 59, threatened an assault on her Dec. 19 in a Metro East area movie theater.

the Charles Melvin Price Support Center in Granite City for one year, long enough to recover from the transplant before reporting to Germany.

"I was so shocked when David called me from the airport to tell us he was still here and was going to stay to donate his kidney," Mrs. Edwards said.

"At first I thought he was calling from New York or someplace. It was really the best Christmas gift he could give the whole family."

Danny still has to visit the hospital twice a week for a routine blood test, but according to his doctors, his chances of recovery are very good.

"I'm looking forward to playing my drums and driving and doing the things that I want to do," Danny said. "I'll finally get to know how it feels to feel good."

Honest citizens do more than bend the rules

The following article was submitted through the Granite City Post Office, where Charles T. Parkinson is postmaster.

They are primarily housewives and retirees living on modest incomes or small annuities. From this group of so-called middle Americans, comes a growing number of petty criminals — people willing to cheat, manufacturers on rebate offers as a way to supplement their income.

Manufacturers' offers to refund part of a product's purchase price help stimulate sales on products as diverse as diapers and luxury automobiles. They can range from as little as $1 to several thousand dollars although rebates offered through the mail generally stop at $50.

To someone bent on breaking the rules to pick up spare cash, these offers are both tempting and lucrative. And submitting requests often is as simple as reading instructions on the back of the rebate offer, completing the form, addressing an envelope and mailing it to the manufacturer. In six to eight weeks, the check usually is in the mail.

Unfortunately, submitting multiple rebate requests on the same item, or for a product never even purchased is fraud, and that is a crime. Otherwise law abiding people who get involved in this activity, may not be on the same criminal level as drug dealers, insider stock traders, or confidence swindlers, but they are committing a crime, nonetheless. They are stealing from manufacturers and other customers, and using the mails to do it.

It is difficult to say whether the number of people engaged in this activity is growing or that stricter law enforcement is beginning to bring the extent of rebate fraud to light. But, more people are getting caught than ever before — 91 last year, up from 35 in 1987.

Generally those caught cheating manufacturers through rebates sign voluntary general consent agreements promising to stop the activity thus ending any further prosecution. In some cases, however, recidivist rebaters have been charged with criminal fraud and face stiff fines and jail sentences.

Because the money involved per rebate is generally low and because the appearance is that many factors are simply "giving" the money away, many people rationalize that sending in multiple rebates is not a crime and doesn't hurt anyone.

But that is not the case. Rebates are a cost in developing, promoting and selling products. Companies cheated by paying rebates on non-existent sales often are forced to pass those losses on to the consumer through higher product prices. Although no firm figure is available, losses due to rebate fraud are estimated in the hundreds of thousands of dollars per year.

Although most manufacturers are reluctant to stop offering rebates, in recent years they have joined the battle to combat rebate fraud. Many companies now use fulfillment houses which have systems that can quickly detect multiple requests, use of same names or geographic area, and phony receipts and proofs of purchase.

One approach the Inspection Service takes to halt this fraud is targeting consumers who send away for more rebates than sponsoring companies allow.

A manufacturer of hair dryers, for instance, might offer a $5 rebate to customers who submit a completed rebate form, a proof of purchase such as the uniform product code or product trademark from the actual package plus a dated cash register receipt. Although a manufacturer will pay a consumer a rebate on each of several different products purchased, most limit to one per household the number of rebates per product type.

The majority of consumers seeking rebates actually buy the products and send in one legitimate request. A small percentage goes beyond that. The question of fraud arises when people send more than one rebate request on the same product, duplicating the requested information and then concealing their identities by using the names and addresses of friends and relatives as recipients.

Some consumers take this criminal activity a step further by requesting rebates on products they never bought using phony receipts and fake or stolen proofs of purchase. They tear the labels off the store and take entire packs of rebate slips leaving none for legitimate purchases. To product the needed cash register receipt, some people have gone so far as to buy used cash registers while others use copy machines to mass produce receipts and proofs of purchase.

Local inspectors working these cases say that "expert" rebaters even rent large numbers of post office boxes to ensure lots of different addresses to fool manufacturers and to conceal their activities from friends and neighbors.

In one case that was prosecuted, a single family obtained 600 letters from a toy manufacturer, each containing a $30 rebate check. In another, a woman allegedly bought a $20,000 car using her rebate proceeds.

Some feel the crackdown is like Goliath picking on David, but when the amount defrauded reaches into the thousands of dollars, it is more like Robin Hood stealing from the poor. Besides, most who get caught admit they knew what they were doing was wrong. They simply assumed that companies, detecting the phony or multiple requests would just refuse to pay. They didn't realize the law would be looking at them.

The Inspection Service would rather not seek criminal prosecution of every individual caught fraudulently collecting rebates, preferring instead to convince people to stop the activity. The simplest method is the administrative complaint, a legal agreement a person signs, promising to stop or face a maximum of $10,000 a day in fines if he or she continues. It is an effective way to get the point across that no matter how innocuous it seems, rebate fraud is still a crime.

Prison crowding becoming serious

By Sabrina Eaton
Staff writer

WASHINGTON — Federal and state prisons, including those in Illinois and Missouri, are even more overcrowded than was thought earlier, according to a congressional study released earlier this month.

In a report prepared for Congress, the General Accounting Office found that federal prisons are 56 percent over capacity and that prison populations will more than double by 1995.

The study said the federal prison population rose from 24,162 prisoners in 1980 to 48,017 in 1988. Its 70 corrective institutions are designed to hold only 30,860 inmates.

Operating costs in 1988 ranged from a low of about $8,000 per inmate per year at a minimum security facility in Florida, to about $32,640 annually at the U.S. Medical Center for Federal Prisoners in Springfield, Mo. Costs at the Bureau's highest security prison, the U.S. Penitentiary in Marion, Ill., were about $25,900 per inmate.

"If anything, the crowding situation is worse than that 56 percent figure," said Greg Bogdan, U.S. Bureau of Prisons spokesman. "According to our latest figures, we are 65 percent overcrowded."

To remedy crowding at the federal level, the Bureau of Prisons is building new facilities like one in Greenville, slated for 1993 completion. The Illinois facility will consist of 300-bed medium security prison surrounded by a 250-bed minimum security area, he said.

Prison officials are also examining alternatives to federal prisons like community corrections centers and electronic monitoring devices, he said.

Crowding at the facilities in Marion and Springfield are not as bad as at other federal institutions because they provide specialized services, prison authorities explained.

Marion takes inmates who were discipline problems at other institutions, and Springfield serves as a hospital and mental institution for federal prisoners. Medical expenses account for much of the high costs of keeping an inmate at Springfield, and extra security measures drive up costs at Marion, said prison officials.

At the state level, Illinois prisons are housing 24,475 prisoners in facilities designed for 18,361, said Nie Howell, Illinois Department of Corrections.

"We are up to our eyeballs in alligators," said Howell. "Our prison population is going up at a dramatic rate because of drugs. The problem goes beyond what the Department of Corrections can solve."

Plans are being made for several new prisons, including a 729-bed facility near Mount Vernon at Rend Lake, but those will do little to remedy the problem, he said.

Overcrowding is less of a problem in Missouri state prisons, though the number of prisoners is increasing by 60 to 80 each month, said Donald D. Schroeger, of the Missouri Department of Corrections. The state's 16 institutions house 14,305 prisoners, he said.

"We are overcrowded in the same sense that a three-bedroom house would be in a family with five children," said Schroeger. "Our support facilities and buildings have been able to handle the increased population because of good planning, cooperation with the Legislature and so forth."

An inventory was taken Dec. 23 to determine what materials may have been stolen from a storage trailer at Koetting-Petard Agency on Progress Parkway, off Illinois 3.

Employees working inside the new Novotny Chevrolet building near Koetting-Petard Agency on Progress Parkway, off Illinois 3, and then heard banging noises coming from that location.

Someone then got into the parked vehicle and drove away at a high rate of speed without headlights. The Novotny employee said. The vehicle went across Illinois 3 and east on Pontoon Road. Two padlocks were found broken the door of a trailer, which had been entered.

The storage trailer was believed to contain electrical materials, including large spools of wire, it was not immediately determined what was missing.

Jail inspector foils possible breakout

By Carolyn Schmidt
Staff writer

BELLEVILLE — A seemingly harmless game of checkers turned into a much more serious matter for a St. Clair County Jail employee.

Property officer Sherry Reeder discovered four 8-inch hacksaw blades taped to the inside of a checkerboard mailed Dec. 8 as a Christmas gift to convicted murderer Mark "Steve" Bryant.

He received the package from Hillsboro, Mo., said jail officials.

Bryant, 36, of St. Louis, serving an 80-year sentence for murdering an East St. Louis man with a sickle, was transferred to Menard Correctional Center in Chester on Dec. 21. But he was not allowed to take the checkerboard with him, said Jail Superintendent Charles Greer.

Reeder, who is responsible for opening all mail sent to inmates, said the hacksaw blades were not visible until she took the checkerboard out of the box.

"They were pretty big saw blades, taped on the inside of the checkerboard set," Reeder said. "They usually have a pretty neat way of hiding stuff."

Reeder said that jail policy requires that mail be opened in front of inmates. However, games sent in packages are searched before allowing the prisoners to have them.

Sheriff Mearl Justus said the department will not investigate who sent the package.

He said that, given Bryant's 80-year sentence, the mail incident would not merit the time spent examining handwriting samples and taking other investigative measures.

"The postal authority says there's no violation there. The FBI is not interested in pursuing it," Justus said.

Justus said that sending tools for escape through the mail has never before occurred in the seven years he has been with the department. He said some blades were smuggled into the building three years ago, but trusty did not give details of that incident.

Reeder was a jailer with the department for three years prior to becoming a property officer. "There have been drugs brought in through the mail but I don't think any escape-type things have been brought in," she said.

Bryant was sentenced Nov. 30 for the murder June 3 of James "John John" Everson at Everson's home in East St. Louis.

At the time of the murder, Everson was in the home with a woman. She testified in St. Clair County Court that Bryant attacked Everson with a sickle and then repeatedly raped her.

At-Home Care shortens name

At-Home Professional Care, the private-duty side of St. Elizabeth Medical Center's home care services, has shortened its name to At-Home Care.

"We shortened the name because it was just too long," said Denise Wilson, RN, At-Home supervisor.

"It also seemed to overemphasize the professional services we offer, such as registered nurses and licensed practical nurses," Wilson, 798-3900, said.

"We wanted people to have a better idea of the full range of services we offer. All our care is given at a highly professional level, but we offer a complete range of home services, including housekeeping and certified nurses' aides."

At-Home can provide:

• a registered nurse or licensed practical nurse to perform technical nursing skills, procedures, treatments and medications; a certified nurse aide to provide personal care and assist with light cooking and homemaking responsibilities; and a companion/homemaker.

Companions/homemakers provide attention, entertainment, company, comfort and safety, as well as light cooking and homemaking, including running errands.

They also provide respite care for the developmentally disabled and autistic.

"We want to let everyone in the area know about the services we offer, and continue to expand our services to meet the needs of the community," Wilson said. "We plan to start a nanny service sometime in 1990. We will come to your home and care for a sick child, so both parents can go to work."

Berlin photo exhibition set

"Berlin," a color photo exhibition providing images of the 750th anniversary of that city, will be presented Jan. 2 through 19 in the second-floor, south-wall exhibition area of the University Center at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

The photographs of Manfred Hamm and Gunter Schneider provide interpretations of Berlin as they each recorded events of a 1987 celebration and the city's diversity. Unusual vantage points and juxtaposition of older elements of Berlin against its modern structures present rich images in color and detail, authorities say.

"Berlin" is being presented by SIUE's University Museum in cooperation with the Goede Institute, the German Cultural Center of St. Louis.

The exhibition may be viewed during hours when the University Center is open.

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

When a person is injured as a result of someone else's negligence, he will eventually have to decide whether he wishes to settle the case or take it to trial. The insurance company providing coverage for the defendant will often make an offer in a given case after the plaintiff is finished treating with the doctor. Whether an injured person accepts the offer of settlement or chooses to have a jury decide the matter depends upon the facts in each particular case.

Let's assume a plaintiff is injured in an automobile accident when the defendant rear ends his automobile. The plaintiff is hospitalized for a few days with neck and back injuries and later receives physical therapy on an outpatient basis. His total medical bills are in excess of $3,500, and he has $1,500 in lost wages. After reviewing the case, the insurance carrier offers the plaintiff a settlement of $12,000.

The plaintiff has to decide whether to accept this settlement offer or take the case to trial. What the pros and cons of settling a case in a situation such as this? If the injured party decides to settle, one advantage with be that he will receive money immediately. Many cases that go to trial often take two to three years to be resolved. Another advantage to settling is that the plaintiff will not have to expend monies for court costs and depositions. Finally, many injured parties do not relish the prospect of going to court and facing the uncertainties of a jury trial.

The primary advantage to taking a case to trial is that juries are often more generous with an injured party than are insurance companies. What factors should the plaintiff consider when deciding what course of action to take?

One consideration is where the suit would be brought. Certain jurisdictions are traditionally a better forum for plaintiffs than others. Another factor is whether the defendant is totally at fault in the accident or whether the plaintiff was also negligent. Illinois is a comparative negligence state, and a jury's verdict will be reduced based on the negligence attributed to the plaintiff. A further question to consider is whether the injuries sustained by the plaintiff are permanent in nature. In addition, the plaintiff must consider the amount of the offer and decide whether he is willing to wait two to three years to get to trial.

Jude 1:3 "... It was needful for me to write unto you, and exhort you to earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints."

There are times in our lives when we must change course. Times to make decisions that probably will affect the rest of our lives. I feel that we should use a special occasion for this purpose.

Beginning this new year is the perfect time to decide for me the faith in God. We must earnestly contend, really get down to business, concerning our life for Him.

The good life, abundant in faith, does not come naturally. We have to go for it, and with all our strength. Why not make a commitment beginning this year to have more of God? And, to let God have more of you!

Today.

New ownership discussed

Foreign ownership of the largest local industry? That was the topic of our top story in the Dec. 24 issue, and it can be pointed out that no shock waves have been reverberating in the St. Louis Metro East area in the ensuing days. Local residents are comfortable with their associates overseas, and confident in the stability, expertise and far-sightedness of the owners.

The article said the two companies that now own 50 percent shares of National Steel Corp. — Nippon Kokan of Japan and National Intergroup of the United States — are discussing changing that status in the first quarter of 1990, with NKK acquiring a majority of the stock.

Granite City Steel, one of the major divisions of National Steel, has been making much progress in its operational efficiency, product quality, equipment upgrading, job skills and employee pay and benefits.

Building on a proud, century-long past and a highly positive present, steelmaking people and machines here are poised for a truly dynamic future, bolstered by both the ability and the resolve to meet worldwide competition head-on.

Boost for children's groups

It's for the kids.

That's been the philosophy of Old Newsboys Day for several decades, and this Christmas the Suburban Journals were able to announce distribution of $215,159 among 190 children's agencies throughout the bi-state metropolitan area.

"Don't think that the east side didn't get its share. We, in fact, did quite well. Area agencies and their allocations include:

Granite City — Church Women United, $1,283 for layettes and day care assistance. Coordinated Youth Services, $542 for educational materials. Protestant Welfare Association, $2,000 for clothes to be provided to poor teenagers. Quad Cities Catholic Charities, $1,792 for baby clothes, diapers and crib items.

St. Catherine Labourer Early Childhood Center, Cahokia, $490 for a swing set, teeter totters, big playground blocks, etc.

River Bluffs Girl Scout Council, $921 for camping equipment. Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Southwestern Illinois, $600 for recreational/educational equipment. Epilepsy Association of Southwestern Illinois, $500 for medication for low-income epileptics.

United Cerebral Palsy of Southwestern Illinois, $1,475 for recreational equipment and camp fees (educational materials). Lutheran Child and Family Services of Illinois, $1,500 for educational materials for teen-age mothers.

East St. Louis — Aldersgate Community Development Center, $610 for sports equipment and games. Call for Help, $884 for group therapy equipment. Catholic Day Care Center, $1,067 for educational equipment and play toys. Comprehensive Mental Health Center of St. Clair County, $800 for developmental toys, a camera and photo albums. Early Childhood Center, $1,580 for educational/recreational equipment. I-Search Project, $875 for sports equipment. Jackie Robinson Khury League, $890 for sports equipment. Griffin Center of Catholic Urban Programs, $1,800 for superslide, mountaineer and net climber. Pop Myles Boxing Club, $800 for boxing equipment. Promise Center for the Developmentally Disabled, $1,714 for recreational equipment. R.J. Krause All-Stars Sports Club, $1,063 for athletic equipment.

Mini-Pres Kindergarten, $875 for play equipment, toys and story videos. And Vincent Gary Alternative High School, $1,025 for educational materials.

St. Catherine Labourer Early Childhood Center, Cahokia, $490 for a swing set, teeter totters, big playground blocks, etc.

An editor's Top 10 for '89

Newspaper "outsiders" have no idea what a pleasure it is to sit down with a year's worth of national news magazines — particularly when one gets to scan a year such as 1989.

I took that task upon myself earlier this week in preparing my annual Top 10 Stories of the Year. This year's list contained more stories with a common thread than any I can remember in the last decade. That thread was communism, or rather the fall of it.

Remember 1989. When history was written, this year's events will stand out as among the most dramatic of the century.

Herewith: my top 10.

1. The Fall of the Wall: The medium of television brought to every home a spectacle unlike any ever witnessed. Hundreds of thousands of people, who had demonstrated for weeks, were finally allowed to breach the Berlin Wall. The fall of the wall represented an end to Communist repression that had begun after World War II and the potential for reunification of Germany. East Germany's government resigned en masse, paving the way for democratic reforms.

2. China in Turmoil: After weeks of unprecedented protest, troops opened fire on freedom-seeking students in Tiananmen Square, killing several thousand people on June 4. The hardline Communist government of China is considered to have strengthened the people's resolve. Later shown in Eastern Europe.

3. U.S. Invades Panama: More than 21,000 U.S. military troops invaded the tiny Central American country in search of dictator Manuel Noriega, the largest U.S. military operation since the days of Vietnam. Noriega outmaneuvered the troops and surrendered himself to the Vatican Embassy in Panama City, and negotiations continue for his extradition to the U.S.

4. Earthquake in California: People will long remember the tremor that toppled large areas of San Francisco, Oakland and elsewhere in the Sunshine State. The collapse of Interstate 880 was responsible for most of the 60-plus deaths that occurred when the 7.1 Richter-measured quake struck.

5. The Wane of Communism: Like dominoes, the governments of Hungary, Poland and Czechoslovakia bent to the demands of the populace. Communist rule quickly became rule by the people. The fall of the governments is struggling with reform.

6. Crackdown in Colombia: Colombia declared war on cocaine cartels after the slaying of presidential candidate Luis Galan in late August. The crackdown hurried along the U.S. policy of President George Bush, who is targeting $7.3 billion to the anti-drug fight.

7. The Wreck of the Valdez: The March 24 wreck of the Exxon Tanker Valdez on a reef in Alaska's Prince William Sound caused the worst crude oil spill in U.S. history. Environmentalists predict longlasting damage to the natural habitat of the 11 million-gallon spill.

8. Hurricane Hugo Strikes: Nearly 40 people were killed in the Caribbean and Charleston, S.C., when high winds struck in September. Large parts of Charleston were out of power and supplies for days, prompting a nationwide relief effort.

9. The Overthrow of Romania: The tiny country threw off the chains of Communist repression when opposition protesters captured, tried and executed President Nicolae Ceausescu and his wife. Ceausescu's crimes against the people included the ordered killing of more than 60,000 people by government troops.

10. Pete Rose Banned: The gambling-related lifetime ban of baseball's greatest Hit Man struck a nerve with every fan of the Cincinnati Reds.

Victorian Christmas tour was breathtaking

To the editor:

This opportunity is being taken to sincerely thank the Downtown Neighborhood Restoration Society for the fine Victorian Christmas tour by candlelight on Saturday, Dec. 9.

Each home and parlor on the tour was truly warm and inviting and beyond anything we had anticipated — the homes were simply breathtaking.

Each home was beautifully decorated and so full of character. The DNRS should be highly commended for the hard work and dedication in turning these homes into what they are today.

We would also like to give our special thanks to those members who had homes on the tour, for their gracious hospitality and generosity.

The walkways by candlelight, the Victorian carriage rides and the Christmas caroling were the finishing touches to a very memorable evening.

Owners should not give up options downtown

To the editor:

The Downtown Redevelopment Plan is a plan of a few office-holders in Granite City. The whole city does not approve of this plan.

This is why new businesses, as a whole, do not move downtown. The Nameoki Road area is the natural path.

If property holders allow the city to have the option rights upon your property, that means that you cannot be free to make your own options.

Killing of pets for research is called inhumane

To the editor:

On Dec. 12, the Animal Control Committee of the Madison County Board voted to return to selling former pets in the county pound to research facilities ("pound seizure").

Homer Henke and Don Garrett voted to present to the County Board a resolution that an advisory referendum be held on whether to return to the practice of selling former pets for research.

I am not opposed to necessary and humane use of animals in meaningful biomedical research, but I oppose selling former pets held at the pound to be used in such research.

Most of the animals which end up at the pound are pets which have become lost or otherwise separated from their owners.

Some have been turned in by their owners who feel they can no longer care for them.

These pets have learned to obey, trust and love their human companions. To use them in experiments is inhumane.

While research facilities claim their experiments are not inhumane, stressful or painful, this cannot be so, for were it so, the experiments would be performed on humans rather than dogs.

I am also opposed to selling former pets because it is a betrayal of the public trust. People hope and believe that if their beloved pet ever becomes lost and ends up at the county pound, it will be treated humanely.

What pet owner would not be horrified to learn that his lost pet had been sold to a research facility to be used in experimentation? The county pound exists to serve the citizens of Madison County, not the St. Louis research facilities.

Finally, a return to pound seizure would seriously undermine the adoption program of the Madison County Humane Society.

Research facilities are interested only in young, healthy, good tempered, well-mannered dogs and cats. These are precisely the same types of dogs and cats in which prospective adoptive owners are interested.

How can the Humane Society, with its limited space and resources, compete for these animals with research facilities which are willing to pay the county money for them?

Animals which might otherwise have been adopted to good loving homes will instead be sold like meat to a research facility.

There is an alternative to using former pets in research. The research facilities may use "purpose bred" dogs. These are dogs which have been bred and raised by the research facility, specifically for use in research.

There are several advantages, both for the research facility and the animals, to using purpose bred animals in research. Purpose bred animals never live the life of a pet. Living in a cage in a laboratory is far less stressful to these animals and is less of a betrayal of their trust.

This is an advantage to both the researcher and the animal. Further, by using purpose bred animals, the facility knows the history, health and breeding of the animal. This must be an advantage in understanding the results of the experiment.

Research facilities do not like to use purpose bred animals because the cost of breeding and raising them is high. In 1985, the Madison County pound was selling dogs to the facilities for only $12 a head.

The question of pound seizure has been before the Madison County Board before. In 1986, there was such a public outcry against the pound selling former pets for research that the County Board voted overwhelmingly to cease selling to research.

At that time, Henke, now chairman of Animal Control, was one of the few County Board members who voted in favor of continuing pound seizure. Even Garrett voted at that time to stop pound seizure.

It has been only three years since that vote and I see no reason to dredge the issue up again. Mr. Henke all but admits the county pound does not need the revenue from the sale of pets when he claims that his motivation is not economic but altruistic — mankind will be served by the biomedical research.

I urge all who are concerned about their pets to ask their County Board member to vote against pound seizure. To raise this issue again will entail much cost and effort for both sides on an issue that was decided three years ago.

McKinley Bridge not pretty, but officials say it's safe

By Andy Sierling
Staff writer

VENICE — The McKinley Bridge, which recently celebrated its 79th birthday, looks like you might expect an almost-octogenarian to look. But though it's showing its age, officials say it is in good shape structurally and is likely to be able to serve bi-state commuters for years to come.

The question is whether those commuters will continue to use it in the numbers they traditionally have.

Various sources confirm that more than 15,000 vehicles cross the bridge daily (five million annually), providing sorely needed revenue for maintenance and enabling its owner, the city of Venice, to meet its bond-payment obligations. It is the second oldest Mississippi River vehicular bridge connecting with St. Louis and still in regular use.

Venice, which purchased the bridge in 1958 from the old Illinois Terminal Railroad Co. for not quite $23 million, still owes about $9.6 million to the bondholders. It pays about $1.2 million yearly on principal and interest on the 2-percent bonds.

Bridge Manager Tom Fields worries that competition from an improved Poplar Street Bridge may cut into the bridge's revenues when new ramps to the free bridge are completed in 1993.

"I see troubled times ahead," Fields said. "Traffic will be OK for the next four or five years, but what happens when these projects are completed?"

Compounding the challenge posed by an improved free bridge is the fact that motorists often complain about the bumpy ride McKinley offers. Although about $515,000 of the bridge's $3 million yearly budget goes for maintenance, nearly all of it is for structural repairs rather than the bridge deck.

"People get upset about the way it looks," conceded Venice Mayor Tyrone Echols, "but my primary concern is its safety. We can worry about the way it looks down the road."

Echols said it would cost $1.5 million to $2 million just to paint the bridge, never mind replacing the deck. Total unmet repair needs were estimated at nearly $14 million in 1986.

Still, the McKinley Bridge and Venice have fared better than other bridges owned by municipalities. The City of Madison lost a gold mine when the new Chain of Rocks Bridge opened, the free bridge put the old Chain of Rocks toll bridge out of business in the 1970s.

Similarly, the opening of the Poplar Street Bridge in 1967 cut into the tolls collected by East St. Louis' Martin Luther King Bridge (formerly the Veterans Bridge) and St. Louis' MacArthur Bridge.

By 1984, Poplar had siphoned off nearly 83 percent of the bridge traffic downtown St. Louis. Toll revenues on the other bridges plummeted.

East St. Louis was forced to default on its bond payments on the King Bridge, which it had built in 1951 at a cost of $10.5 million. Strapped for cash, the city deferred needed maintenance on the bridge to the point that engineers declared it unsafe.

Finally, Missouri and Illinois bought the King Bridge in 1967 at a fire-sale price from its bondholders and got federal help to repair and improve it.

On the MacArthur Bridge, tolls diminished to less than the cost of collecting them, so tolls were discontinued in 1973. Still, the City of St. Louis couldn't afford the $6 million required to fix the bridge, and it was declared unsafe and closed in 1981.

This summer, St. Louis traded the MacArthur Bridge to the Terminal Railroad Association for the Eads Bridge, intending to use it as part of the Metro Link light rail commuter system.

Some people have suggested that Missouri and Illinois get together to take over the McKinley Bridge like they did the King Bridge. When Madison County chipped in $250,000 to help pay off the bondholders of the King Bridge, there was some vaguely worded language in the agreement about future "reciprocity" with regard to the McKinley Bridge.

Officials with the East-West Gateway Coordinating Council and the Southwestern Illinois Metropolitan and Regional Planning Commission said there has been no serious discussion about the states taking over the Venice bridge.

Moreover, they say it is not necessary at the moment.

Marty Altman, director of transportation planning with the East-West Gateway Coordinating Council, said the King Bridge was unsafe and the McKinley Bridge is safe.

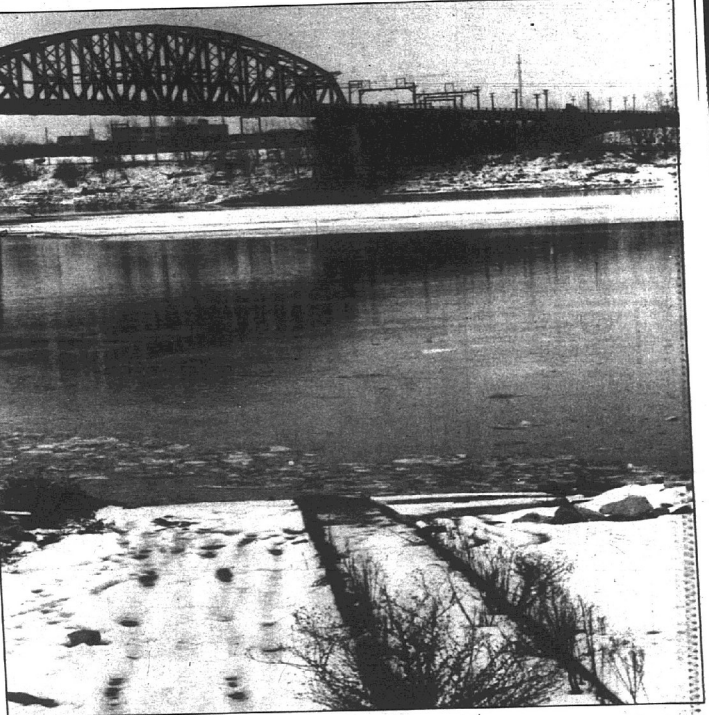

"There are some potholes and things like that," Altman said, "but structurally, the bridge is sound."

Mayor Echols is adamantly opposed to a state takeover, anyway, citing lost revenue and patronage jobs. The bridge has 21 full-time employees and several part-time workers, and a yearly payroll of $460,000.

Moreover, officials, including a spokesman for U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello, say state and federal money cannot be used for improving toll bridges.

Besides, if Venice can continue making its scheduled bond payments, while keeping the bridge structurally sound, in 1998 (when the bonds are scheduled to be fully retired) the city may begin reaping a desperately needed harvest of dollars.

But those are some big ifs, for Venice is chronically short of cash. This year alone, it issued $100,000 in high-interest "junk bonds" for a working cash fund, and it dunned the McKinley Bridge operating budget for an additional $50,000. The 1989-90 bridge budget projects $53,000 in income for the city.

There is, however, a possibility that Venice may be able to refinance the bridge in order to make needed improvements now. Mayor Echols said he was recently contacted by a representative of Mercantile Bank in St. Louis about that possibility.

The Mercantile officer was on vacation this week and could not be contacted, but an aide confirmed there was some discussion.

If favorable loan terms could be reached, it would help offset some of Venice's cash-flow problems, as well as help a cosmetically more attractive bridge compete with the improved Poplar Street Bridge.

Of course, there is some question how much more traffic the Poplar Street Bridge can handle. It already attracts 120,000 vehicles daily, out of a total of 248,000 daily on all six St. Louis area bridges.

The King and McKinley bridges each handle about 15,000 cars and trucks daily. Other daily totals are: Clark Bridge, 18,000; Interstate 270 Chain of Rocks Bridge, 47,000; and Jefferson Barracks Bridge, 32,000.

Fred Bartelsmeyer, assistant district engineer for the Illinois Department of Transportation, said the McKinley and King bridges are underutilized.

Transportation experts say bi-state traffic will increase 25 to 35 percent by the year 2000. The McKinley Bridge, in whatever condition it is in by then, will doubtless be needed — regardless of how it looks.

City of Lights and all of France radiant in the milestone year of '89

First of two columns
Nineteen eighty-nine is nearly over, and we couldn't let it depart without spotlighting the year's importance in French history.

We had a chance to spend a few days in France in September '89 and the visit was well timed, although we missed the mid-summer height of the revelry.

Paris, in particular, was ablaze with golden-hued lights marking the republic's 200 years and the Eiffel Tower's 100 years. It was such a special time that even the French, known for their aloofness, seemed a bit warmer and friendlier.

WHAT STARTED IT ALL, of course, was the Revolution, including the storming of the Bastille (to free political prisoners), the occasion chosen by defense attorney Richard Aldrich of Granite City for many annual parties.

If you'd like to continue celebrating the Revolution, you can do so through the entire 1990s.

But it wasn't all partying.

The 10 years from 1789 to 1799 were a time of struggle and violence, historians point out. King Louis XVI lived lavishly while seeking more tax money for his bankrupt government and soon was being told, "Your Majesty, the people are revolting."

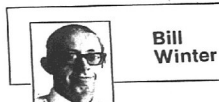

(No, it isn't true that he replied, "Yes, aren't they?")

THE KING AND QUEEN and thousands of aristocrats were put to death over the next few years in public executions at the guillotine, and even many revolutionary leaders lost their heads there after they lost their popularity.

In those days, when they shouted "Off with your head," it wasn't a fantasy as in Alice in Wonderland.

Trials were brief and the punishment was swift and irreversible (reminiscent of Bucharest, Romania, this Christmas).

The king had held the primary power in France, but by the end of the 10 years power had passed to the nation's middle class.

Bill Winter

Napoleon Bonaparte then became "first consul" of France in 1799 and established himself as the ruler.

After Bonaparte was defeated in 1815, the Bourbon kings regained the throne, but it was only a limited monarchy: the former feudal type of governmental structure was a thing of the past. Democracy eventually flowered, but not for many years.

OUR EARLY-AUTUMN tour included an English Channel voyage from the white cliffs of Dover to the European continent at Calais.

We drove south across an area of World War I battlefields to Paris, truly the "City of Lights."

Sightseeing in Paris inevitably includes the Cathedral of Notre Dame, the Champs Elysees boulevard and Arch of Triumph, the Place de la Concorde (the square where the guillotine was located), the Paris Opera, and the Louvre art museum, which exhibits the Mona Lisa painting and the Venus de Milo statue.

PARIS WILL NEVER be confused with Las Vegas, but each of those cities features such busy nightspots as the Folies Bergere, the Crazy Horse Saloon and the Lido. Paris had them first, and Las Vegas wants to save you the trouble of going overseas.

Las Vegas has brilliantly colored neon, but no other city than Paris has such outstanding evening drives past monuments and "illuminations." It was even more impressive this year, when the French spent a fortune on electricity.

On a previous trip, we had visited Versailles, the palace where the French royalty once spent a lot of its time, envied by virtual ly all other European kings and princes.

The ornate rural palace was created by the "Sun King," Louis XIV, for times when he wanted to escape the hustle and bustle of Paris.

AMONG HIGHLIGHTS of the palace are a mammoth hall of mirrors and magnificent statue-lined gardens.

From Paris this year, we traveled east through the agricultural heart of France and the wine-producing region of Burgundy. We stopped in "the medieval town of Beaune amid the vines of the Cote d'Or," as our travel brochure had promised.

We then crossed the border into Switzerland but several days later returned to France and the former winter Olympics resort of Grenoble.

Later portions of our scenic drive were greatly aided by highway tunnels, numbering more than 100 and representing much cost and effort in the years preceding World War II.

WE TRAVELED THROUGH a seemingly endless number of steep mountains and also followed portions of a route where Napoleon once marched his army.

After stopping at the fortified village of Entrevaux, we came to Nice, situated between Cannes and Monte Carlo on the French Riviera.

The area looks like a picture postcard and provides a holiday atmosphere the instant vacationers arrive.

The view of the Mediterranean is striking. But the coastal area is not many kilometers from rugged mountain terrain that seems to dominate much of France and Italy.

Flat land is so scarce in many places in France that homes and businesses are perched at dizzying elevations, reached only from hazardous hairpin roads. Wouldn't want to live there, but it's a great place to visit.

Trivia

June 1844 was the time of The Big Flood. At that time the Mississippi River was at its highest level in history, 8 to 12 miles wide locally, making it possible to sail a steamer from St. Louis across the American Bottoms right to The Bluffs.

Cruse conceded that the rest of the city could be jealous of the attention being directed toward East Granite.

"We're not just going to do for one neighborhood and say 'forget the rest.' This is just a starting point. The other neighborhoods will get their turn," he said.

With property values protected or possibly increased by the rehabilitation, there is a possibility that residents' property assessments will increase.

"That's the way the system works," Cruse said. "It does depend on value."

"But I was an assessor for more than 20 years and I don't know of anyone who — I believed in my heart — didn't take care of their property just because they didn't want to pay more taxes."

Keshner, who will sentence Hopkins, defended the system that allows Hopkins to remain free.

"Reasonable bail was set and he met that bail," Keshner said. "That's how the system works."

Classic

Host Collinsville, this season's No. 2 seed, finished second in last season's tourney by upsetting previously undefeated (and No. 1 seed) Springfield Calvary in the semifinals. Collinsville then lost to East St. Louis Lincoln in the tourney final, but this season coach Bob Bone's team may have what it takes to replace the Tigers as the area's representative at state.

Sophomore guard Richard Keene is already averaging 24 points per game that 1989 graduate Tim Pace provided the Hawks with last season, when the Hawks won their third straight Southwestern Conference title. Senior Kevin Benson and junior 6-7 post man Kyle Jones return to give the Hawks (5-1) varsity experience.

Second-year Decatur MacArthur coach Jim Cline has the Generals off to a 5-3 start, good enough for The Classic's No. 4 seed. Sophomore guard Tim Pace is scoring in double figures with two of the Generals' five seniors, Felipe Phillips and Jeremy Moore.

East St. Louis Lincoln, which is fourth in an unprecedented four-straight state Class AA title, didn't make the cut for the top four seeds. However, Lincoln's 3-4 start can partially be attributed to a difficult schedule, and during the past three seasons the Tigers have found The Classic (10-2 in tourney play) ideal for launching their hopes to the state crown.

Renzo Martin, the tourney's MVP last season, returns for the Tigers. Martin, an All-America candidate, is currently considering Illinois among his college choices.

Springfield Southeast, normally a steady performer in The Classic, was bounced out of last year's tourney on the second day. After finishing 16-9 last season, coach Tony Johnson got the Spartans off to a 3-3 start this season with help from 6-5 newcomers, Howard Harris and Eddie Davis.

Jerseyville last year won its first game ever in five years of tourney play. The victory came in the consolation bracket, where Panther post man Derek Dunham scored 32 points against Belleville East.

Dunham, 6-7, is back with more than 1,000 career points and five senior teammates who make Jerseyville a potential darkhorse contender in The Classic.

Madison, a Class A team off to a 3-1 start, may also surprise the tourney field. The Trojans have more state this season than they customarily enjoy, but Madison still boasts a strong backcourt guard led by 6-10 junior guard Andre Maye (20 per game).

Edwardsville is the defending consolation bracket champion and the Tigers simply be looking to get some action in. The Tigers, who reached the state's final round of 32 during last spring's Class AA March Madness, will have played only four games entering the tourney thanks to a postponement and a light schedule.

Second-year coach Mike Waldo's Tigers will run the floor this season with a three-guard offense featuring 6-3 Joe Blain, 6-6 Mark Little and 6-6 Jason Heien. Interestingly, Edwardsville's top threat from outside is senior Kevin Paur, the tallest Tiger at 6-5.

Mike Kaczmarz is the new coach at Springfield Sacred Heart-Griffin, which left last year's tourney after two losses. Kaczmarz, who coached 1988 Class AA runner-up Chicago St.

Francis DeSales and current Indiana sophomore Eric Anderson, is working this season with a nucleus of four juniors and lone senior John Casey (6-2, leading scorer with 11 per game).

Bill Ohendorf replaces Don Detering as coach at Granite City, where sophomores 6-7 twins Brian and Jeff Smith are the foundation of a promising program. The Warriors enter the tournament with a 6-4 record. Ohendorf formerly coached at now-defunct Granite City North and Venice, which finished third in the Class A state tourney under his direction in 1973. Belleville East enters its second year in the tourney with an experienced team led by 6-5 junior Gary Sney and 6-4 senior Aaron Friederich. The Lancers are off to a 4-2 start this season after showing promise during the second half of last season.

All games will be broadcast live on WRYT-AM (1080). Games after dusk must be picked up on Cencom Cable Channel 10.

Columbia

Venice took the lead late in the third quarter, then held a slim lead much of the fourth quarter before Scott Germain's driving helped tie it at 60-60 with 14 seconds left.

Venice called timeout with five seconds left and senior John White launched an off-balance shot at the buzzer that hit nothing but net. The officials ruled, however, that the buzzer had beaten the shot.

"Write your own opinion," said Venice coach Clinton Harris, who was convinced White's shot was good.

Claggett scored the first basket in overtime before Charles Miller got a steal and Leo Glasper hit another basket for a 64-60 lead. Marty Lowry nailed Columbia's sixth three-pointer to make it a one-point game with 1:10 left, then the Devils had to withstand a turnover by White and a missed free throw by Shane Miller with 24 seconds left. Claggett hit two free throws, then the Eagles turned it over when Glasper intercepted sophomore Shaun Kohlenberger's pass in the final seconds.

"We had our best shooter (Jeff Prossie) with the ball and he hesitated," said Columbia coach Doug Rose. "Then Germain had a chance and he didn't shoot. We're still young and inexperienced."

"When No. 23 (Lowry) fouled out, that was a plus for us," said Harris. "Germain was the only one left to handle the ball. Glasper won the game for us with his defense on Prossie. Leo played well last night, too (a 78-56 win over Waterloo)."

Columbia took the lead after a 12-12 tie in the first quarter and the Devils didn't catch up until Claggett's two free throws made it 40-40 with 27 seconds left in the third quarter.

"That shot was no good," said Harris. "These officials have been doing this a long time and they should be better."

It was the second close loss for the Eagles to the Red Devils this year after a 72-70 game on Nov. 30.

"We just had one bad streak at the end of the third quarter," said Rose. "It's tough to pull away from a team like that. Claggett is just an outstanding player. It should be fun to watch them play Friday."

Cavins promoted at Crews

George F. Crews has announced the promotion of Marian Cavins to director of Training for the main office and the branch office which will be opening soon of Crews Realty Better Homes and Gardens.

Her responsibilities will include instructions of the Illinois Real Estate License Law and "The Advantage Training Program" provided by Better Homes and Gardens.

Crews has also announced that the firm will be holding its first real estate class beginning Jan. 15.

The class will be taught by Cavins, a licensed real estate broker and real estate instructor. She has been a local Realtor for 10 years and is a life-long resident of Granite City. She attended local schools and St. Edwardsville.

For more information on the real estate class, which will last for five weeks and meets two nights a week, call Crews Realty Better Homes and Gardens 877-4800. The office is located at 3228 Nameoki Road in Bellemore Shopping Center.

Flood tops $5,000,000 sales

Flood Realty Centre of Granite City has announced that Gaye Flood had more than $5,000,000 in closed sales production in 1989.

According to Flood Realty, production of $1,000,000 is considered above average by local standards and out of approximately 100 active real estate agents, only a couple will be near $3,000,000, making $5,000,000 extraordinary.

Gaye Flood has consistently been a sales leader, including the highest production level in the area. She credits her success to hard work and honesty, and clients and customers also cite her professional ability and dedication.

Frazier attends conference

Granite City State Farm Insurance Agent William T. Frazier recently attended Legislative Forum '90 at the State Capitol in Springfield.

The conference, the first of its kind ever held by State Farm, introduced agents, agency managers, and company support staff members in Illinois to the workings of the Legislature.

A panel of six legislators gave a briefing on current insurance issues. The panelists said insurance had generated some major controversies in recent sessions, and stressed the need for factual data in the lawmaking process. The audience was encouraged to share knowledge on disputed issues by communicating with local and state officials.

"Legislative Forum '90 achieved its most important objective," said Chuck Wright, State Farm regional vice president. "We feel that to best serve the insurance needs of our customers it is important that State Farm's agents and staff have a basic understanding of the legislative process."

"Part of that understanding comes in the realization that our input is valuable not only to legislators, but to the interests of our policyholders as well."

Moore gets concierge post

Michael Moore, director of guest services at The Sheraton St. Louis Hotel, has been elected to serve as vice president of the St. Louis Concierge Association (SLCA) effective Jan. 1. He will serve a one-year term.

A St. Louis resident, Moore is originally from Granite City. He has been in the hospitality industry for more than three years and an SLCA member since 1987.

Valvoline takes used oil

Valvoline Instant Oil Change Inc. has announced it will accept used motor oil at all of its service centers across the United States.

Robert M. Harbison, president of Valvoline Instant Oil Change, made the announcement.

"It's frightening to realize that more than 200 million gallons of used motor oil are improperly dumped into our water and soil every year," Harbison said. "Our environment simply can't take that kind of abuse, so we want to do what we can to provide some relief."

Valvoline Instant Oil Change operates 21 quick lube sites throughout the St. Louis bi-state area. The company currently operates about 240 in the United States.

1989 huge for film industry

This year will go down in the annals of the movie business as the best yet for ticket sales, up 12 percent from 1988. But the films of 1989 averaged below par for artistic achievement.

There were few films in the artistic league with Academy Award winners "Amadeus" (1984) or "Chariots of Fire" (1981), but there was a lot of escapist fare and carefree comedies this year, including "Black Rain" and "Bill and Ted's Excellent Adventure."

Box office receipts in the United States totaled $4.46 billion in 1989. The figure will be about $5 billion in 1990. Officials from local exhibitors Wehrenberg Theaters and American Multi Cinema say those growth figures parallel in St. Louis in 1989, but they will not release box-office totals.

As in years past, uncertain economic conditions nationally kept movie ticket sales from looking for a temporary escape from news of the latest anti closing or headlines about some major corporation about to lay off 10,000 employees out on the street.

The majority of sequels this year did well, including the very successful films "Back to the Future II," "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom" and "Lethal Weapon 2."

Another important element in the box-office bonanza of 1989 was the fact that there were six motion pictures released during the calendar year that each grossed more than $100 million on an average year there usually are two to four films that reach that lofty plateau. Four films in 1989 grossed more than $100 million.

The six motion pictures that topped the magic mark in 1989 were "Batman" ($281.2 million), "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom" ($195.4 million), "Lethal Weapon 2" ($147.1 million), "Honey, I Shrunk the Kids" ($129.4 million), "Ghostbusters II" ($111.9 million) and "Look Who's Talking" ($101.6 million).

St. Louis saw some major improvements in moviegoing comfort and enjoyment in 1989. The renovation and expansion of the Esquire theater by AMC and the opening of the Northwest Plaza 9 Cine by Wehrenberg, along with improvements in other theaters in screen quality, sound equipment, projection, seating comfort, concession sales and many other areas all made moviegoing in St. Louis in 1989 the best it has been.

When selecting films for my "best" and "worst" lists, I stay away from mandatory list lengths. Each year the movie crop varies in volume and quality. Some years there are 10 great films, other years there may be only five.

I also don't feel it's fair to rank films, especially on the "best" list. There already is too much obsession in Hollywood with the good, better, best mentality. At Oscar time, the voting usually indicates popularity, not excellence.

Here are my selections for the best films I saw in St. Louis during 1989:

"Crimes and Misdemeanors," "Dangerous Liaisons," "Field of Dreams," "War of the Roses," "Dead Poets Society," "Dad," "Always" and "L.A. Lies and Videotape."

Some films I really enjoyed, but which don't belong on the "best" list, are "When Harry Met Sally," "The Little Mermaid," "Scandal," "Batman," "Parenthood," "A Dry White Season," "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom," "Sea of Love," "Johnny Handsome," "Romantic Comedy," "The Bear," "Lean on Me" and "Immediate Family."

The films I nominate as the

Harry Hamm

Worst of 1989 include: "Second Sight," "Harlem Nights," "Sing," "The Karate Kid III," "Lost Angels," "Pink Cadillac," "Ghostbusters II," "Great Balls of Fire," "License To Kill," "UHF," "Worth Winning," "Lock-Up" and "Farewell to the King."

Films that have opened late this year in cities other than St. Louis that might have qualified for the best list include "Born on the Fourth of July," starring Tom Cruise; "Driving Miss Daisy," starring Morgan Freeman and Jessica Tandy.
